Re: Safety Label on Egg Cartons

To whom it concerns,

It is my understanding that this may cause a panic in the consumer, as well as hardship to the egg industry. It may have a negative impact on the consumption of eggs. It is also my understanding that there are USDA approved vaccines/bacterins that producers can use to help prevent Salmonella enteritidis.

I think more thought to having a mandatory vaccination program like Germany, having producers vaccinate for prevention should be considered instead of frightening the public.

Sincerely,
